PUBLIC POLICY FOR SOCIAL CHANGE

Department of Political Science

Session: 2022-2023

Department of Political Science arranged an Add on Course on 'Public Policy for Social Change' in session 2022-2023 (course duration: 16th November, 2022 to 26th November, 2022). All the faculty members (total 4 faculties) enthusiastically involved with this course and motivate the students greatly. The course was open to all even semester students of the institution. There was a decent enrolment of students with participation of both boys and girls (Total Participants were 101). The prime objective of the course has been to inculcate in our students the multi-dimensional connotation of public policy and social change enables them to decipher the complex societal relationships from the paradigm of public policies. The course intends to investigate the impact of public policy on social change in postcolonial societies and across cultures, diversity of social experiences and contributions in policy orientation. Using Public Policy for Social Change provides a comprehensive introduction to public policy and its role in addressing societal challenges, with a focus on social inequalities. We'll explore various areas of policy work, including social welfare, public health, the environment, education, and criminal justice. Learn the fundamentals of public policy design and analysis, and how policymaking functions across all levels of government in democracies worldwide.

The course offers the opportunity to delve into social issues we care about, learn from real-life policymakers and advocates, and strengthen your analytical, critical thinking, and advocacy skills to create positive social change. Using Public Policy for Social Change leads students through each step of the policymaking process and encourages you to see how your talents and passions can play a role in making the world a more equitable place. Public Policy & Social Change concentration prepares students to critically re-examine the principles and values that support the public policy process. The concentration challenges students to critically interrogate governmental policies through the lens of ethical leadership, creative problem-solving, social justice, diversity, and global interdependence. Students develop multifaceted expertise through courses such as policy processes, policy analysis, conflict resolution, community development, democratic theory, human rights, and global studies. As scholar-practitioners, students move beyond the traditional confines of public policy as a technocratic science and develop critical and creative ways to solve crucial contemporary social problems.
